DAMAGE AND RECOVERY

Subtract resistance from damage. Apply the difference to the target.

$$\text{Damage} = 1d6 + \text{Power Level}$$

If the attack is Normal

The remaining points of damage are deducted from the target's Health (or Endurance, if it is a stunning attack).

If the attack is Alteration or Mental

Half of the remaining points of damage are applied to the target (round down to a minimum of 1).

If your Endurance or Health are reduced to zero

You are out of the fight unless someone revives you.

$$\text{Resistance} = \text{Power Level}$$

Recovering from injury

Recover all lost Endurance and half of lost Health with a short rest (an hour). Recover all lost Health with a long rest (8 hours). Recover 2 Health and 2 Endurance when revived (standard action).

Recovering from ongoing effects

To recover from an attack with an ongoing effect, the target must use a standard action to attempt a skill roll against 7 + Power Level of the attacker.
